EDITORIAL

Friends,

Thanks to all of you that visited our table at Prosek and not only bought some of our items, but also engaged in some meaningful conversation. It seems that the long winter has put some modellers into an information deficit, and this year there was no shortage of people to talk with. Recognition must also go out to the organizers of the show for their overall efforts, thanks to which the Prosek show consistently achieves a high standard. The only minus from our end of things is that the timing of the show prevented us from having our April releases available, and they typically aren't available until around this time each month. And this month, they are worth it!

Following its display premiere in Lingen, today is the official release of the new ProfiPACK Fw 190A-8 in 1:48th scale. I am probably not the only one who feels that the new line of one-nineties is the best of all of the kits we have produced up to now, and that all of the A-8 kits, of which there will be three, are the best of the line, as it was with the actual aircraft. This new kit has nothing in common with the original we released, despite perhaps looking like they may have something in common. As is well known by now, the new generation of these kits went back to the drawing board in terms of both shape and concept, making it a much easier build. There was even no duplication in the marking options offered. We put money on offering options of aircraft that have not already been done to death, so there are no real famous names among them, but they are aircraft of famous units, and will not bore. The second April ProfiPACK release is the Spitfire HF Mk.VIII in 1:72nd scale. To the contrary, this one has naturally plenty in common with its 1:48th cousin including in the markings options, although there were some changes made here. The Limited Edition line sees its first big effort of a reboxed kit this year in the shape of the Tornado F.3 ADV and we anticipate about the same popularity of it as we are expecting of the Fw 190. It's based on the plastic by Revell and is complemented, as usual, by our accessory items and a large Cartograf printed decal sheet focusing on interesting and colourful subjects. The resin bits include seats and wheels which among jets is a popular combination. The fourth April kit is the good ol' Bf 109E-4 in the Weekend Line. The kits are, of course, accompanied by the availability of quite a bit of accessory items that include cockpits, engines, fuselage guns and a Löök set for the Fw 190. The Tempest Mk.V now has an engine available for it, which is a kit in itself in terms of its parts count. Its development was a task and-a-half. I would like to point out the next of our nuclear bombs in 1:72nd and 1:48th, and the next in the line of infantry weapons in 1:35th. Among the photoetched items and masks you'll find items for the B-52H from Modelcollect and the Phantom FGR.2 from Airfix in 1:72nd, in 1:48th there is an interesting set for the Hunter F.6, also from Airfix, and in 1:32nd there are further sets for the Lancaster B Mk.I from HKM. There is also a collection of sets for the new Trumpeter P-40F. In 1:35th, we put some focus on the new Tamiya M3A1 Scout Car and on the Armata T-15 from Zvezda. For ship modelers, we have the last of the PE sets for the USS Enterprise (CVN-65). Further details follow, as they always do in these newsletters.

Back to the Modelcollect B-52 for a second. In the past, we have released several sets for the B-52G. With the new B-52H kit, for which we are introducing new sets today, we discovered that some are usable in the B-52G as for the B-52H. We have decided to relabel the packaging to make it clear that the specific set is applicable to both versions of the airplane, and indeed, for all B-52s from this manufacturer, and including potential future versions. To clarify, the following table lists the sets and their name, as well as their previous names:

ITEM No.	ORRIGINAL DECRIPTION	NEW DESCRIPTION
72677	B-52G landing flaps 1/72	B-52 landing flaps 1/72
72682	B-52G bomb bay 1/72	B-52 bomb bay 1/72
72683	B-52G undercarriage 1/72	B-52 undercarriage 1/72
BIG72144	B-52G PART I. 1/72	B-52G 1/72
BIG72145	B-52G PART II. 1/72	B-52 1/72

I would also like to point out that we are progressively renewing some of the old, but popular, Self Adhesive sets in an updated and non-self adhesive form. In April, these will be sets for the F-15C, F-14 and P-47D-20 in 1:32nd, the La-5FN and Il-2m3 in 1:48th and the Hurricane Mk.I, F-4J and F-35 in 1:72nd.

In April, you can meet us at Moson, in Hungary, and in Prostejov. I will personally be in Prostejov, where I will have the pre-release Fokker D.VII MAG in 1:72nd scale, specially prepared for Easter at Prostejov. The kit will be a unique Czechoslovak version in a post-war three-colour camouflage scheme in three choices and without photoetched brass. If I am not mistaken, this marks one hundred years since our forefathers captured this machine in the conflict against revolutionary Hungarians. Among other points of interest, this kit will have its decals printed with new technology that will come into full use through the summer, hopefully. Who will be in Prostejov and will want to capture this new kit of a captured aircraft with new production technology will need to pre-order it. This can be done through our e-shop, and I will deliver the kit myself. Payment can be made on delivery or in advance via the usual methods. If you want this item but will not be attending Prostejov, it can still be ordered and paid for, and mailed out through, again, the usual channels. But take notice... there will only be fifty of these available. Actually, it was similar last year with the MiG-21MF. It would appear that another tradition is taking hold.

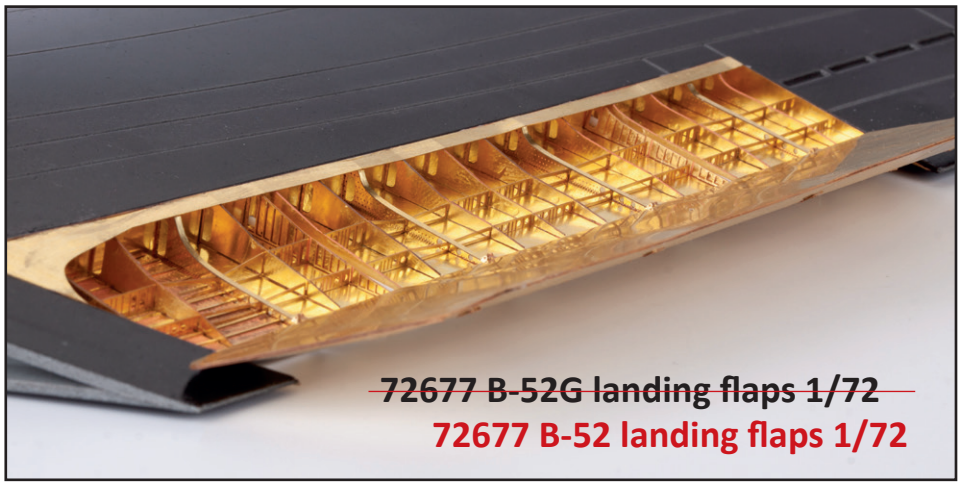

A week later, our display delegation will be at Moson, with all of the new releases for April and May. Among them will be the full fledged Fokker D.VII, only in a slightly different version, OAW. As opposed to the post-war Austro-Hungarian, and subsequently Hungarian and sub-subsequently Czechoslovak, versions, the German machines are significantly more striking. And the most striking among the striking are probably the aircraft that came from the OAW plant. On top of that, they were flown by famous pilots, among them holders of the Pour le Merite, all pointing towards May's Fokker D.VII (OAW) being one helluva kit. To that will be added two Limited Edition kits, the Shachak and Barbarossa in 1:48th scale, the Weekend Fw 190A-3 and the usual list of photo-etched, masks and Brassins. The Barbarossa kit will include two kits, a Bf 109E-4 and a Bf 109F-2 where the F-2 will include the older seat from the Emil. This will be a little resin bonus in the kit. There was a time when this was a deep topic of discussion, and some of you might remember that. The marking options went a similar route as the Fokker ,; they are interesting and we tried to combine them with well known significant names and striking schemes. Again, we tried to steer clear of aircraft that have already been offered and so make the kit that mush more attractive. It's a similar story with the Shachak. We picked aircraft with a combat story to tell, and markings and schemes from different time periods of these aircraft. Two of the five aircraft offered were modernized with the Atar 9C engine, and this is handled with resin conversion components. Even this was discussed passionately in the past. And because you can never have too many Focke-Wulfs, we will be releasing an A-3 in May with two cannon in the wings.

So I won't take up any more of your time and let you get on to the newsletter, and I wish you a good read.

Happy Modelling!

Vladimir Sulc

#48989 Tornado F.3 ADV upgrade set (PE-Set)

ZE785, Operational Evaluation Unit, RAF Station Waddington, Great Britain, 2003

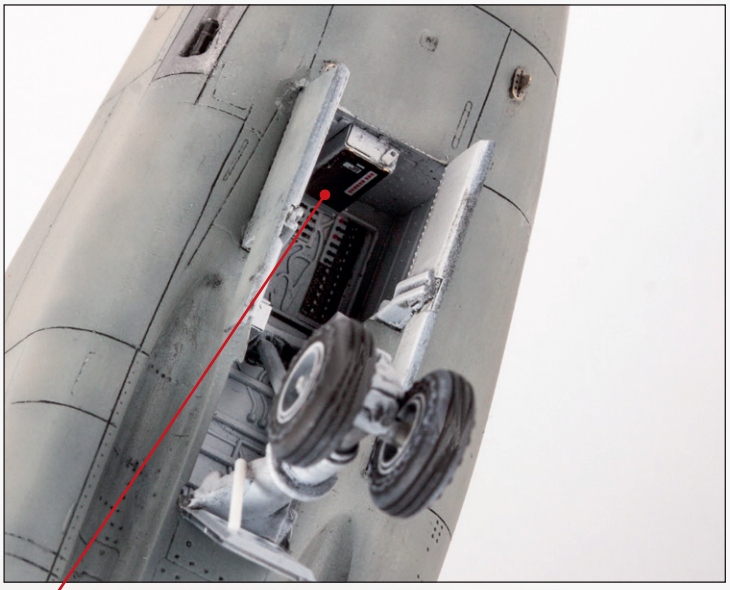

Since 1987, the performance evaluation and weapons and systems applications of the Tornado F.3 aircraft were conducted at OEU located at Waddington airbase. Operations of this unit facilitated the incorporation of this aircraft type into the combat units and its performance assessment continued during the routine unit operations with the objective to achieve the maximum utilization of its abilities.
In 2003 decision was made to disband OEU and in the following year ZE785 became a "canvas" for the attractive marking created on the occasion of OEU operation's termination.

W. Nr. 5533, Oblt. Wolfgang Leonhardt, CO of 6./JG 1, Woensdrecht, the Netherlands, October 1942

Oblt. Wolfgang Leonhardt, CO of 6. Staffel JG 1, shot down five enemy aircraft over the course of the Second World War. All were on the Western Front. He met his fate on February 4th, 1943, when he was shot down by defensive fire coming from a four-engined heavy bomber he was attacking. He did not survive the resulting crash.

The standard camouflage of this aircraft from the Arado factory had the fuselage sides, fin and rudder sprayed with stripes in RLM74. The yellow numbers indicated the II. Gruppe aircraft from the 6. Staffel, the horizontal stripe in the Staffel colour behind the fuselage cross was also used by the II.Gruppe. The 6./JG 1 marking, the Tatzelwurm, in the Staffel colour appears on the engine cowl.

JN765, No. 3 Squadron, Newchurch, Great Britain, June 1944

In early June 1944, No. 3 Squadron's code was changed from QO to JF which was used until August 1945. The so-called „Invasion Stripes' were also added to aircraft serialed JN765 prior to the operation. Groundcrew painted black the bottom section of the main landing gear cover black, apparently in error.

DUAL COMBO

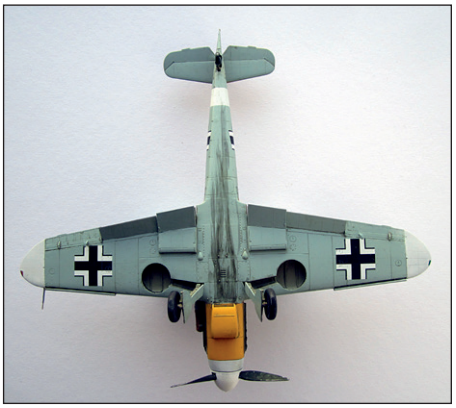

Bf 109F-4/Trop, W. Nr. 10154, Lt. Friedrich Körner, 2./ JG 27, Ain-el-Gazala, Libya, June 1942

The later bearer of the Knight's Cross, Friedrich Körner, joined Luftwaffe on November 15th, 1939. On July 4th, 1941, after his fighter pilot training, he was assigned to 2./JG 27 where he achieved all of his success. On July 4th, 1942 he was shot down flying a Bf 109F-4/Trop W. Nr. 8696 during the attack on the bombing squadron of the Allies. The pilot who shot him down was a South African flying ace Lt. Lawrence Waugh of No. 1 Squadron SAAF on Hurricane Mk.IIc. Körner saved his life on a parachute, and then he was captured. He was released from Canadian prison camp in 1947. In 1955 he joined the re-established Luftwaffe where he served till June 1979. He died in Paris, on September 3rd, 1998.

Lt. Körner's aircraft bore a standard Luftwaffe paint applied to the planes involved in the African missions. On the rudder there are symbols referring to his shot downs by June 17th, 1942. Worth mentioning is his remarkable success related to the attacks aimed at the ground targets - on March 21st, 1942, during the battle of Martuba - while performing several successful sweeps he managed to eliminate 4 tanks.
