EDITORIAL

Dear Friends,

I am reporting to you now from Phoenix, in the state of Arizona, where along with my colleagues Martin Ferkl and Martin Finger, we are representing our company at the annual IPMS USA National Convention and we are, of course, introducing our August releases. The star of those August releases is the Bf 109G-10 Mtt. Regensburg in 1/48th scale, and this is a ProfiPACK kit. The differences between the G-10 and other versions of the Bf 109G are generally well known. Most significantly, the G-10 had a bigger and more powerful engine and this resulted in a larger, more bulbous cowl, which is encompassed by two basic versions, 100 and 110, one of which has another two subvariants stemming from it. In its day, it carried the nickname Pferdarsch, meaning Horse's Ass. I think the censors will excuse the mild vulgarity of the term, but it is historically accurate and so should not become a victim of today's politically correct climate and, unlike the swastika, it is not forbidden. As a sidenote, this slang term is associated with July's Facebook quiz. Going onwards, there was also a simplified cockpit canopy, known as Erlahaube, and a tall rudder, also an item with different versions, depending on the manufacturer. In all this, the G-10 is a bit of a 'buried dog', so to speak, and the differences are not necessarily a huge deal, but they do exist, and in this hobby today, it is worth paying attention to them. For this reason, we will be releasing three kits representing the three versions of this variant coming from three different production facilities. The first is the type that was produced by the mother plant, Messerschmitt, at Regensburg. This will be followed by the version built at Wiener Neustädter Flugzeugwerke. Under the WNF also comes the production run Diana, and these, in the interest of tactical diversification, were produced in train tunnels at Tisnová in Moravia. The final one will represent aircraft built by Erla in Leipzig. Today's release of the Messerschmitt produced variant differs from its forthcoming stablemates, among other things, with a small fairing over the wheel wells, while the other two had an elongated fairing over the entire chord of the wing. At the time when the G-10 served with the Luftwaffe, German aircraft were no longer so strikingly marked as they were even a year earlier, and with the prospect of having a P-51 chasing you down, it's of little wonder. It wasn't overly easy to search out some interesting marking options but we were successful. We have five options of aircraft with some interesting markings and histories to boot. The all-grey or blue-grey White 44 from NJG 11 when it was adorned with British markings is the subject of a BFC offering. This aircraft has at times been identified as a G-6AS or G-14AS, perhaps because of that small fairing over the wheel wells. But the serial number does put this aircraft down as a G-10 built at Regensburg. Our own G-10 production will continue in October with a Limited Edition kit of the Avia S-99/C-10, which was a post-war service aircraft used by the Czechoslovakian Air Force, and these were WNF/Diana G-10s. There weren't a lot of these flying, and it is a very Czechoslovak oriented theme, but for E-day, when this kit will go on sale, it is a relevant theme.

There are two more Limited Edition kits to point out. After a lot of questions and requests from fans of Soviet Air Force aircraft, we have decided to release our tested and true Airacobra in the markings of that specific user. It is being released under the name BELLA and will be a Dual Combo kit, incorporating two complete kits with ten marking options. A bunch of these options are new finds and have never been available in any kit before. Some are newer interpretations of known schemes. An example of such an aircraft is the well known P-39 flown by Grigori A. Rechkalov, a famous ace with 44 kills. It has in the past been depicted in an all-green scheme and in our interpretation, it is still green, just in one tone. I think with that, it gained in the interest department. This kit will also have its own BFC connection, and will include an all-grey P-39Q from the 213th GIAP with a four blade propeller.

The final Limited Edition kit falls under the name EVOLUTION and this is a kit of the L-39C/ZO Albatros, again in 1/48th scale. The kit is based on the Special Hobby L-39 and includes two marking options. The C version has markings for a Soviet trainer which is said to have been flown by Russian president Vladimir Vladimirovich Putin from time to time. The dragon motif on its sides is rather striking, and we have used this before in one of our first Limited Edition releases in 1/72nd scale, and it sold out incredibly fast. The ZO version has markings for a sharkmouthed Hungarian aircraft and a stylized Hungarian flag on the tail that is no less attractive than the other offering. The package naturally includes masks and coloured PE, which goes for the other two above mentioned models as well. Again, this kit also has its BFC component, but this time a little more involved than the others. This one has a bonus figure...of a bear. And riding this bear is...well, you know who. See the pictures for yourselves. If you'd like this set, don't hesitate, because they will go fast, and there are not many to go around. We'll either sell them out, or they will be banned.

The release of new kits, as usual, is rounded out by the WEEKEND line, and in this case it is of the Spitfire HF Mk.VIII in 1/72nd scale. The marking options cover two aircraft, as normal, and one will be known from the 48th scale ProfiPACK kit, while the other one is new. But, compared to the previously mentioned stuff, this is not likely to change anyone's life in terms of excitement. But even that's not always a bad thing.

A look at the accessories that are coming out this month, the LÖÖK sub-line gets a couple of new items. As last month, there are two new items in 1/32nd scale, one for the Fw 190A-5 from Hasegawa and the other for the Spitfire Mk.IX Early Version from Tamiya. The star of the Brassin releases is without a shred of a doubt The DB 605 for the Bf 109G-6 from Tamiya, which brings to an end the accessory items developed for this kit. There will be the BigSins, but then Bob's yer uncle. That first BigSin for the Bf 109G-6 is being released for August and is the ESSENTIAL set. September will see the release of the ADVANCED set. What is included in these sets is not necessary to explain at any unnecessary length, since that is obvious from the illustrations that can be found below in this newsletter. Also attractive will be the cockpit set released for our simultaneously available Bf 109G-10, also in 1/48th scale. There are also two mask sets being sold for the Bf 109G-10, a TFace set and a classic set. In the same scale, we have cannon pods for the fw 190A-5/U12 for the Eduard kit and for the Eduard miG-21MF in 1/72nd scale, we have an ejection seat. In this smaller scale, we have a couple of sets, wheels and exhausts, for the Ki-61 Hien from Tamiya and a wheel set for the Wellington Mk.I from Airfix. The Wellington also turns out to be a good subject matter for masks and PE this month. August sees the release of three photoetched sets and a mask set and there will be more over September and October. While on the subject of PE and masks, I would also point out new sets for the L-39 EVOLUTION kit where the PE set is an expanded item and the masks are TFace. In 1/48th scale for August, we are also releasing sets for the F-18B/D from Kinetic and the Firefly Mk.I from Trumpeter. The Trumpeter MiG-29UB in 1/32nd scale is also covered, including the TFace masks. In the ship scale of 1/700, we are offering signal flags in a coloured PE set and in 1/350 the first set for the USS Enterprise CVN-65 from Tamiya, the first of many yet to come.

So, there is no danger of boredom in Phoenix. Not if we can help it. This is a four day event after which we will relax with a bit of running around the Pima museum and then continue on. A little way from Flagstaf, at a little intersection near the Grand Canyon, there is a Bf 109G-10 in a museum. We've been there twice already, but a third time won't hurt, I'm sure. I am also sure there will be no boredom in Plzen either, at PilsenKit on September 1st. This is the perfect time to introduce new items for September, and these will, of course, be available there. For fans of 1/72nd scale, we will have the MiG-21MF Fighter Bomber kit. This is the more interesting of the two MF kits, serving with something like fifty countries around the world and carrying a like number of interesting marking and camouflage possibilities. The BFC component of this kit will include an SPS-141 ECM pod. For quarter scale fans, we are preparing an impressive Limited Edition kit under the equally impressive name Reichsverteidigung, which we have dubbed here Reichsblablahblah. Blah. I hope our German friends will be forgiving, but come on – sometimes the length of those names is a bit overdone. The contents of the kit will be consistent with its name, and it will not be something to be built over the course of a weekend. It will take more than that just to give the thing a once-over! Most importantly, Reichsblablah will be the introduction of the new-tooled Fw 190A-8/R2 Sturmbock from the new 190 line of kits. I must admit that with respect to the number of kits we sold of the Sturmbock from the initial (older tool) kit, we don't want to release another classic ProfiPACK line of the same subject and at the same time beat the old marking options to death with it. So our approach is taking this into careful consideration, and in the vast majority of cases, the markings have not been included in any of the other kits. The same goes for the Bf 109G-6/G-14, the other component of the Dual Combo kit. I have not stated til now that this will be a Dual Combo type boxing. Nor have I said that there will be two BFC items available for it. One will be a Bf 109G-6 with a pair of Brassin WGr.21 underwing rocket pods. The other will be based on the Fw 190A-8/R2 with a rear firing WGr.21 hung under the fuselage. Also Brassin. Bombastic, if you ask me!

Happy Modelling!

Vladimir Sulc.

Spitfire Mk.IXc, MK924, flown by F/Sgt Michal Murayda, No. 302 Squadron, Chailey, June 1944

Michal Murayda was a US volunteer, and his parents were Polish. He became a member of Polish No. 302 Squadron and took part in 'Operation Overlord'. MK924 was his personal aircraft during the Normandy landings. The code letter A was painted in white on one of the black ID bands. Ground personnel chalked this letter on to the fuselage roundel apparently for identification purposes.

Spitfire Mk.IXe, MK329, flown by W/Cdr J. E. Johnson, CO of No. 144 Wing, June 1944

Aircraft allegedly related to the beer barrels is MK329. This aircraft was used by Johnnie Johnson, according to his memoirs he flew it twice. Rumor has it that he brought beer to his men in Normandy flying MK329. Spitfire MK329 is a real mystery. It is not listed as produced by any of the factories. Johnson mentioned that it was assembled from wrecked airframes and carried no guns. Johnson only flew it once, never in combat, since it carried no guns, and was a mix-and-match airframe, cobbled together out of spare parts.

No. 1019, flown by 1st Lt. Sadik, No. 11 Squadron, Al Rasheed Air Base, Iraq, 1980

MiG-21MF numbered 1019 took part in the Yom Kippur War when it served as part of the expeditionary force with No.11 Squadron when it was sent to Syria. On October 22nd, 1973, according to Arab sources unconfirmed by Israeli ones, Namiq Saadallah shot down an Israeli Mirage III. Seven years later, in the war with Iran, 1st Lt. Sadik shot down an Iranian F-4E Phantom II with an R-13M missile flying this airplane. The front of the aircraft carried the Arabic numerals 1019 and below the windscreen was a record of the kills achieved in this aircraft.

Bf 109G-2/R6, flown by Hptm. Horst Carganico, CO of II./JG 5, Salmijärvi, Finland, May 1943

The first unit in which the then twenty-two-year-old Lt. Carganico served after completing flight training was JG 1 at the beginning of the war. This was followed by service with JG 77 with which he saw combat in Norway and then the Battle of Britain. On January 1st, 1941, he returned to Norway where he commanded 1./JG 77. On September 25th, 1941, Carganico achieved his 27th kill and was awarded the Knight's Cross. In March 1942, Carganico's unit was redesignated as 6./JG 5 and in April 1942, he was given command of the entire II. Gruppe. On March 26th, 1944 he was given command of 1./JG 5, which saw combat against Allied forces within the Defence of the Reich. On April 27th of the same year, Carganico took off for the last time. In an attack on a group of B-17s, his Bf 109G-5 was heavily damaged and during his attempt to belly in, he struck some high power lines. He did not survive the resulting crash near the French town of Chevry. His final tally consisted of sixty kills over the course of 600 sorties.

The camouflage scheme on Carganico's aircraft consisted of RLM 74 overspray on the sides of the fuselage. The tops of the wings and the front and rear fuselage areas were given smaller squiggles in white. On both of the fuselage sides, below the cockpit, was the unit marking II./JG 5. The left side of the fuselage behind the cockpit bore Carganico's personal emblem, Mickey Mouse dragging shoes that symbolised the pilot's return to his unit after crash landings behind enemy lines. The aircraft likely carried the Gruppe Commander double wedge marking on the right side of the fuselage.
