EDITORIAL

Dear Friends

The 'British Year' is upon us. Not only does this mean an onslaught of all kinds of media speculation regarding Brexit on all fronts, but it also means, believe it or not, the inauguration of our 'British Year' today. This means that our catalog will gain at least one new British aircraft model each month. This is really a timing co-incidence, but perhaps this will allow a certain compensation for any possible ill effects of the Brexit vote on our exports to Britain. Starting on the ground floor and moving up, for July this means a re-issue of the 1/48th scale Lysander and the brand spanking new Spitfire Mk.IXc in 1/72nd. Thy latter corresponds to later production series, which really means most marks of this legendary fighter. The proper designation should be LF.Mk.IXc, but the LATE label, for the purposes of differentiating from the versions used in the 48th scale kit, comes across as reliable and relevant enough to continue here. We also did not deviate much from the overall concept of the 48th scale kit. The design of the kit has been marginally simplified, while still mimicking the bigger predecessor. What has changed are the exhausts, which are no longer hollowed out, but are attached from the outside of the fuselage without any unnecessarily complex finesse. In all honesty, I have to say the exhausts is the only part of the 48th scale kit that I feel could have been better. Compared to other 1/72nd scale Spits, this kit has new surface features. It is completely riveted in the same style as the bigger kit. This approach was realized in this scale for the first time here, with considerable skepticism, but the end result is extremely satisfying. The rivets are very subtle, their size being 1/3 of the 48th scale corresponding items, and we considered this to be a prerequisite for this kit to be produced in this style. That was easier said than done. In the end, we arrived at an interesting and essentially simple route leading to something that is easthetically pleasing. I hope that you will agree. The rest also is in the same spirit as the 48th scale kit. The selection of markings options, decals and masks adhered to the adage 'don't mess with a winning lineup'.

A new release is always accompanied with 'what's next?'. Along those lines, the pattern also comes from the true and tested 1/48th scale line, with a minor modification to the release line-up. Other versions, including the Mk.VIII and Mk.XVI with both canopy variants, will follow through the second half of the year and through the next year, including Limited Edition kits and Royal Class boxings. We will release not just a Limited Edition Spitfire Mk.XVI, but also an Aussie Eight and The Boys are Back, the last two with a theme consistent publication, and the latter in an expanded format. Various versions of the Spitfire will be a significant part of our 'British Year'.

I promised that in this introduction to the newsletter, I would explain the selection process that picks out kits for our catalog. When it comes to our own 1/48th scale kit production, it's quite simple. We want to produce kits of well known, famous, aircraft. Most of these already have been produced by someone, somewhere, at some time, usually to a very high standard. We observe the design of older kits, and pick out those that we think we can surpass. Then, we find out if anyone is planning to produce, or has just begun to produce, the type, and if so, we typically rule those out, for the moment. What is left is then assessed against the numbers of sold photoetched items for the given available type and kits are shortlisted accordingly. We have a generated list at the time when a new project is about to be begun, the marketing situation for the given kit is confirmed, and if it hasn't changed, we go into it. In 1/72nd and 1/144th, the procedure is similar, but we pick kits we have produced in 1/48th, so the list of potential subject matter is considerably shortened. With respect to Limited Edition kits, the procedure is again similar, just with a greater tolerance. We pick from a list of what is available, with less emphasis on whether or not someone else is not gearing up to produce the same subject, keeping in mind that the run typically runs 3,500 kits. I hope that explains it. If not, please feel free to ask!

Going back to kits, together with the Spitfire, we are re-releasing two older items. The Lysander Mk.III in 1/48th scale is the old Gavia kit, from whom we acquired the production rights to the moulds and have re-released the Lysander three times since, and I would add that each time, the kit was sold out fast. This time 'round, the kit is being released as a Profipack item and is very similar to preceding releases. The Yak-3 in the Weekend Edition is also a good ol' faithful item, having been released who knows how many times before and has stood the test of time well. This time around, as noted, it is being released as a Weekend Edition item, with two marking options that are, I think, very representative of the type. July sees the introduction of the second project in collaboration with Koike Shigeo, dubbed the Sound of Silence, which is a depiction of an encounter between a Vietnamese MiG-21PFM and an American Skyhawk. The model and its associated artwork represents a complex marketing item, but each is packaged separately.

New kits are typically accompanied by the release of related accessory items. For July, this relates exclusively to the Spitfire Mk.IX in 1/72nd scale, along which we are releasing simultaneously two photoetched sets, seven new Brassins and one decal set of stencil data. There are actually two such decal sheets, the second being for the Bf 109G. For the Yak-3, there are separate photoetched and mask sets being made available. Other sets in the Brassin line include P-40 wheels (632080) and underwing bazooka tubes (632082). The Brassin line also introduces a very interesting set for the Bf 109G in 1/48th scale, a hardpoint set for the underfuselage drop tank with a choice of two tanks (648265). New photoetch sets include five in 1/35th, first of which are designed for the Su-76 from Tamiya, a set of fenders and side armor for the A-14 Armata, a set for the Meng Shilka, and for the Chevrolet C-15A, all of which should be very popular. Aircraft sets being released include coverage of the MiG-31B/BN in 1/48th, this subject in its first version release was the hit of the spring and my hope is that this version will be the same for the summer. We also have four sets for the new Trojan in 1/32nd from KittyHawk. Today, I was able to inspect the Trojan up close and personal at the air base in Hamamatsu and I found it hard to believe that four photoetched sets could be produced for this aircraft! There are also sets covering the F4U-4 Corsair in 1/72nd scale from Revell and two for the USS Kitty Hawk in 1/350th from Trumpeter. The lineup is rounded out by six sets of steel seatbelts (as you may be aware, we call these 'Steelbelts') in the three main scales. It is still too early to really make a reasonable assessment on the sales of this new line, although initial numbers are promising, but time will have to be the final judge. In any case, these have garnished a lot of attention wherever we have shown these items at shows. And don't forget to note the new BigEd and BigSin releases for the month, this time including the first Bigsin to cover the Bf 109G-6, with more to follow.

In July, contrary to June, August and September, we will not be at any shows. It was quite pleasant at Nymburk in June, in August we will be at the IPMS USA Nationals in Columbia in South Carolina. At Nymburk, we introduced the Sound of Silence together with July's new releases, and in Columbia we will show off August releases starting with the Harrier GR.7/9 in 1/48th scale which is based on the Hasegawa kit. This is our 'British Year'! And to balance out the British influence on our sales, the Harrier will be going up against two German legends, the Fw 190A-5 Weekend Edition in 1/72nd and the Profipack Bf 109G-6. This G-6 is of the classic type with the original canopy style. It is generally well known now that this is one good kit, and we will be bringing about 150 of them to Columbia, so there should be enough to go around.

Eduard speaks Japanese now! Japanese version of our Facebook page was open in mid June, and Japanese language mutation of the www.eduard.com page is active since Friday, July 1st, 2016. We were working more than one year on this task, and we are proud it is finally done. Japanese is not easy language, I even suspect Nipponese they constructed their language to avoid the other nations can understand them. I have learnt Japanese some four years and I still can say hallo and thank you and that´s it, so I keep deep respect to Alena and other people, who are managing our Japanese section. Our Japanese Facebook page reached 567 fans until today, which seems to be good base for expected growth.

Happy Modelling!

Vladimir Sulc

Spitfire Mk.IXc late version 1/72

NEW TOOL 2016

Camo E
built by Petr Zatřepálek

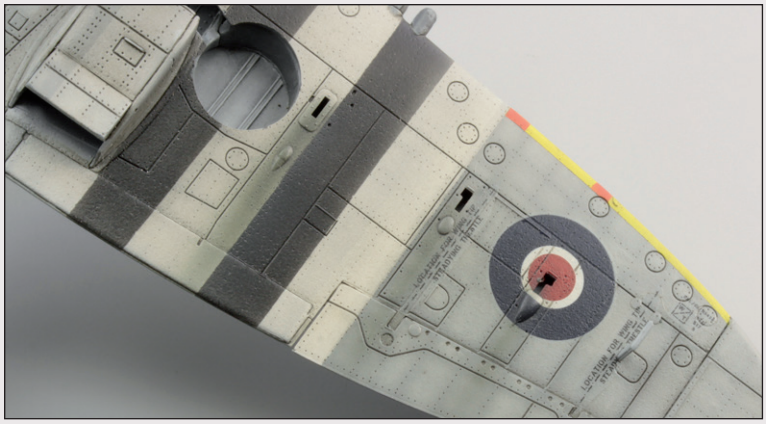

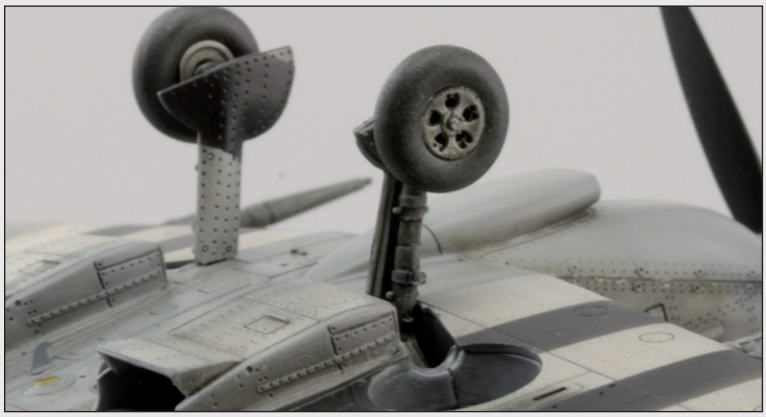

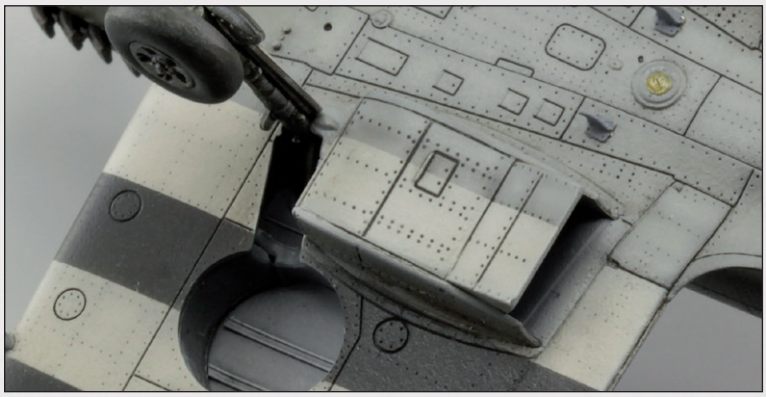

Spitfire LFMk.IXc, ML135, flown by Jerry Billing, No. 401 Squadron, Tangmere AB, June 7, 1944

One of many Canadians in the RAF was Jerry Billing. He volunteered for the RAF in October 1942 to help the Malta defense. He joined No. 185 Squadron and fought over the island until March 1943, when he was downed by a Bf 109 pilot. In 1944, Jerry Billing was sent to No. 401 Squadron. He downed a Ju 88 bomber and damaged two Fw 190s on June 7, 1944, the second day of the invasion of Normandy. On July 1, 1944, his Spitfire, ML135, was hit by AA fire and landed in no-man's land in France. He managed to get back to the UK with the help of a French family. After WWII, Jerry Billing re-enlisted in the Royal Canadian Air Force and became an instructor. In 1951, he joined the Blue Devils – a Canadian aerobatics team that flew Vampire jets. In 1964, he left the RCAF and took a job at DeHaviland as a test pilot.

Spitfire LFMk.IXc, MH712, flown by W/O Henryk Dygala, No. 302 Squadron, Summer / Autumn, 1944

Polish No. 302 Squadron was one of the units that participated in the invasion of Normandy in June, 1944, as can be deduced from the D-Day stripes painted on the lower sides of fuselage and wings. This aircraft was equipped with wing racks for 250lb bombs. The pointed rudder was freshly painted andso accordingly, the colours appeared darker than the rest of the aircraft. Nose art was not particularly common within the RAF, so the girl sitting on the bombis a nice exception. Note the Polish stencil right of the cockpit door ‚Wycierac obuwie' (‚wipe your shoes').

Belts: Seatbelts Luftwaffe WII fighters STEEL PE-Set

1./JG 300, Flown by Fw. Hans-Werner Gross, Bonn – Hangelar Air Base, March, 1944

This unusual camouflage scheme was seen on some JG 300 aircraft and these were flown during night sorties. Upper surfaces were RLM 76 with grey wavy lines. The exact color of the wavy line is not known – RLM 75 or RLM 74 were used almost certainly. It was apparently in this aircraft that Hans-Werner Gross was shot down on March 18, 1944.

DRAKEN 1/48

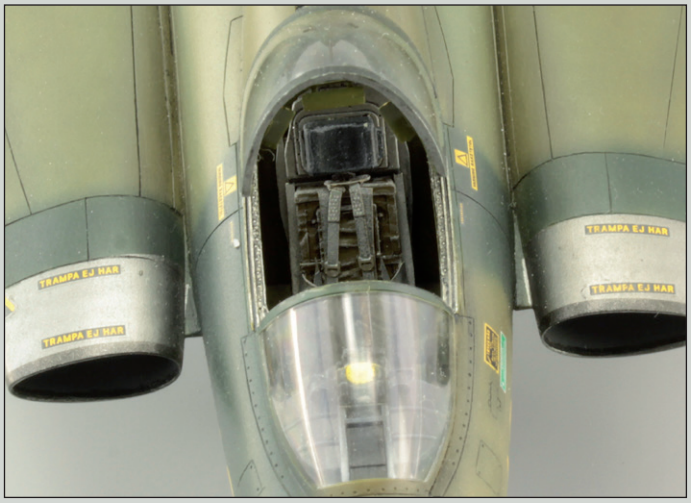

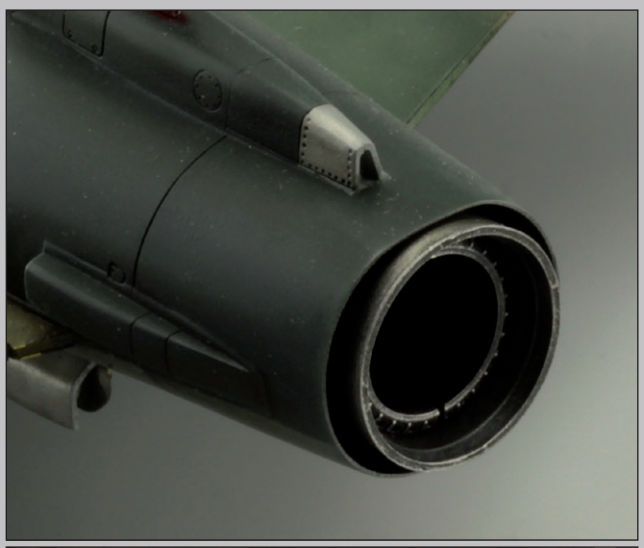

built by Petr Zatřepálek

J 35F, 35465, F-10, 1 Jaktflygdivision, Cpt. Vincent Ahlin, Ängelholm-Barkåkra, 1989

Originally delivered to F-1 Wing located at Västerås-Hässlö in 1967, it was later transferred to F-16 at Uppsala and finally ended up with F-10 at Ängelholm-Barkåkra. During 1989, this aircraft was used by Cpt. Ahlin for displays at several airshows. It sported a red fin with a white ghost. Apart from that, the aircraft was painted in a standard camouflage scheme, but with already faded colours by that time. There were large rectangles on the upper surfaces of both wings painted in fresh olive green (overpainting of tactical numbers) and the tail cone was painted in the same colour.
